We’re internationally known. You will be proud of our reputation no matter where you travel.

We value every student. While our numbers are significant we keep class sizes small and encourage community spirit.
Academic Advantage

Studying at a research university like ours means you will learn from professors who are pushing the boundaries of knowledge every day. A breakthrough in the lab one day might be a lesson in the classroom the next day, enriching your education in exciting new ways. You might be able to:

- Gain funding for your own lab study—and publish the results in an academic journal
- Perform in an opera with a world-renowned recording artist
- Learn film editing from an award-winning documentarian
- Build a formula race car

Winning Faculty

Professors at Rutgers are more than teachers and mentors. Many are award-winners who are leaders in their fields. Faculty accomplishments include:

- Developing a two-hour test for tuberculosis—considered the first major TB diagnostic breakthrough in 100 years
- Identifying a new gene that regulates plant growth
- Creating the most exhaustive archive of translated Anglo-Saxon poetry
- Discovering one of the first Autism Spectrum Disorder susceptibility genes

Talented Students

What you learn in college has as much to do with your professors as with your peers. At Rutgers, you’ll find fellow students who are smart, driven, and diverse.

- Students represent a variety of cultures, economic backgrounds, ages, and sexual orientations, making Rutgers a truly global community
- We welcome and enroll thousands of transfer students, knowing that we can provide pathways for everyone to be successful
- In 2013, 46 Rutgers students earned the most competitive national awards and fellowships such as Luce, Churchill, and Fulbright

“Becoming a Fulbright student has made me realize that the outcome of a Rutgers education is the opportunity to be a global citizen, and to appreciate the opportunities—and responsibilities—that come along with that.”

— Dimetri Duckrey

Spanish and Political Science major, Class of 2013

Dimetri is one of 26 scholars who garnered a Fulbright grant in 2013, making Rutgers a top three national producer of Fulbright recipients. Our Office of Distinguished Fellowships has been helping students apply for and win national awards with great success.
